What to pay attention to before you write your proposal

Read/go through (Do not overlook even if you think you already know these things):

- the guide (be familiar with the aims of the activity, award criteria; consult the rules for applying);
- the e-tutorials on how to prepare a competitive proposal (https://eacea.ec.europa.eu/erasmus-plus/actions/jean-monnet_en), online presentation of JM activities;
- the Instructions for completing the Application Package;
- the FAQs.

Practical tips and hints

- Although you do not teach/do research into EU studies, you can still come up with an idea for a JM proposal (e.g. my JM proposal on European language policies, interculturality and multilingualism; integration of these modules in the degree programmes: MA in ELT/ILT)
- Your proposal, strong relevance to EU/EU-related studies; evidence of added value and how the proposal promotes EU studies, how it adds to the existing teaching content, programmes, methodologies and the like must be proven/demonstrated;
- Some 'state-of-the-art' context of EU studies at your institution/unit should be convincingly provided to justify your needs.

• If the proposal is interdisciplinary/multidisciplinary – this should be strongly demonstrated

Practical tips and hints

Very important. Section E.3. Skills and expertise of key staff involved in the project:

- strong evidence of skills and expertise in EU/EU-related studies or issues;
- short bio provided along with a list of relevant publications (at least 6 along with their abstracts) and paper presentations;
- courses taught (descriptions of courses provided; proof of teaching experience in subjects relevant to the project proposal)
- academic profile of key staff members - expertise in EU issues should be very evident.

Practical tips and hints

Design and implementation of the project:

- Work programme – detailed description of proposed activities, how they were prepared to demonstrate ownership; stages for implementation, evaluation, follow-up and dissemination; how all these are aligned with the project objectives, activities and budget.
- Work plan and methodology – well prepared and realistic; aimed at producing highly tangible activities and deliverables; in line with the proposed objectives
- F.2.1. Specific Activity: TEACHING
- Teaching activities (new or existing): lectures, seminars, summer courses, training courses, intensive course, distance learning course; description - clear introduction, objectives, topics and a list of references to follow; strongly underlined impact, target groups
- F.2.2. Specific Activity: DELIVERABLES - can take the form of didactic materials, learning tools, virtual platform, website, database, CD-Rom/DVD, books/other academic publication, paper-brochure-newsletter, any other form deemed relevant/useful (pay attention to description and impact)
- F.2.3. Specific Activity: RESEARCH (if applicable) - You can fill this in only if you plan some research activity
- F.2.4. Specific Activity: EVENTS - These can take the form of conference, webinar, workshop, roundtable, study visit, promotional event, any other form deemed relevant/useful (pay attention to description, impact, target groups)

Practical tips and hints

4 areas of evaluation (bolded areas to emphasize):

- Relevance of the proposal;
- Quality of the project design and implementation
- Quality of the project team (academic profiles of the key staff involved very crucial for a successful application – pay attention not only to provide an exhaustive and relevant CV for each key staff involved at the end of the form but also to emphasize the relevance of their academic profiles and courses taught with your proposal earlier in the form);
- Impact and dissemination (clearly define target groups, how you will reach them; good dissemination strategy and activities)
