

Elton Skendaj is a researcher in the field of internationalization of universities and he has a relatively long experience in the field of internationalization in Albania and Italy, but not only. He has participated and been part in the drafting and implementation of many international projects under the Erasmus+ programme.

He was also in charge of the management and administration of international relations and Erasmus+ offices and works as Erasmus+ Institutional Coordinator at Mediterranean University of Albania and previously at University of Tirana. He also completed a 18-month research period in the field of internationalization, primarily focusing on building Erasmus + cooperation, double and joint Master degrees, joint PhD programmes, at the University of Tuscia, Italy, where he oversaw the implementation of all Erasmus+ projects in that University with universities from Balkan countries, Eastern Europe, and Asia.